THE KING OF ENGLAND IS DEAD

Edward VII Succumbs to Pneumonia; End Came at 11:45 Last Night

GEORGE V SUCCEEDS TO THRONE

London, May 7.—King Edward VII, who returned to England from a vacation 10 days ago in best of health, died at 11:45 o'clock last night in the presence of his family, after an illness of less than a week, which was serious hardly more than three days.

The Prince of Wales succeeded to the crown immediately, according to the laws of the Kingdom, without official ceremony.

ANNOUNCEMENT TO LORD MAYOR

His first official act was to dispatch to the Lord Mayor the announcement of his father's death, in pursuance of custom. His telegram read: "I am deeply grieved to inform you that my beloved father, the King, passed away peacefully at 11:45 tonight. GEORGE V."

PHYSICIANS' OFFICIAL BULLETIN ISSUED.

The physicians soon afterward issued their official bulletin, which was as follows:

"May 6, 1:50 p.m.—His Majesty, the King, breathed his last at 11:45 tonight, in the presence of Her Majesty, Queen Alexandra; the Prince and Princess of Wales; Princess Royal, the Duchess of Fife; Princess Victoria and Princess Louise, the Duchess of Argyll. Signed by Laking, Reid, Powell and Dawson."

PNEUMONIA APPARENTLY FOLLOWED BRONCHITIS.

Pneumonia, following bronchitis, is believed to have been the cause of death, but the doctors thus far have refused to make a statement.

Some of the King's friends are convinced that worry over the technical political situation which confronted him with sleepless nights aggravated, if it did not cause, the fatal illness.

THOSE WHO WERE IN DEATH CHAMBER.

Besides the nearest relatives in England, the Duke of Fife and the Archbishop of Canterbury were in the death chamber.

The King's brother, the Duke of Connaught, with his family, is at Stuen hastening home from Africa. The King's daughter, Queen Maud, of Norway, will start for England tomorrow.

PEOPLE HAD EXPECTED HIS DEATH.

The intelligence that the end of King Edward's reign had come was not a surprise at the last. The people had been expecting to hear it any hour since the evening's bulletin was posted at Buckingham Palace and flashed throughout the Kingdom. The capital received it without excitement, but sadly, for the King, with his own people, was unquestionably one of the most popular rulers in the world.

One of Last Utterances.

One of the last utterances attributed to King Edward was:

"Well, it is all over, but I think I have done my duty."

He seemed then to have reached a full realization that his death was approaching.

The Queen and others of the royal family and four doctors had been constantly in the sick room throughout the day. Several hours before his death, the King was in a comatose condition, but he rallied slightly between 9 and 10 o'clock and appeared to recognize his family. Then he lapsed into unconsciousness, which ended in his passing.

Body in King's Chamber.

The body lies in the King's chamber in the northwest wing of Buckingham Palace, which is brilliantly lighted, while the rest of the great, gloomy building, with the exception of Lord Knollys' office, is entirely darkened.

It was nearly half an hour after the King breathed his last when Lord Knollys walked into the office and said to the waiting reporters:

"Gentlemen, His Majesty is dead."

The people outside the palace only with papers. In the meantime the Prince and Princess of Wales had taken leave of the other members of the royal family at the main entrance, soon after midnight. They drove directly to Marlborough House.

Princess Victoria, who is her mother's constant companion, remained with the Queen. The others of the family followed the Prince and Princess of Wales.

George Frederick Ernest Albert, Prince of Wales, who now becomes King of England, is the second son of King Edward and Queen Alexandra and was born at Marlborough House on June 3, 1865, seventeen months after the birth of his elder brother, the late Duke of Clarence. He and his brother entered the navy together as cadets, and he spent two years on the Britannia. Then he started on a three-year voyage around the world, sailing on the Bacchante.

The Prince became Duke of Cornwall when his father took the throne.

The prince is a democrat than was his father and does not have such an ardent love for sport. It has predicted, therefore, that after his accession to the throne the court gayety, which was always a feature during Edward's reign, will be less marked.

DEATH OF MR.

ROBERT H. COOPER.

Mr. Robert H. Cooper, one of our oldest citizens, died Saturday morning at 12:45 o'clock at his home on East Houston Avenue. Mr. Cooper has been a resident of Harrison County more than half a century, and of Marshall for thirty-five years, and was known and respected by nearly everyone in this community.

Mr. Cooper was born in Franklin County, Tennessee, October 15, 1817, and moved to Harrison County in 1855, first settling at Cave Springs. He was married June 21, 1855, to Miss Catherine Cooper, of Cave Springs. To this couple five children were born, two of whom are living at present, Mr. J. H. Cooper of this city, and Mrs. George Tamsitt, of Big Springs.

Before and during the war Mr. Cooper taught school at Cave Springs, and several are now living who attended his school. He afterwards lived in Hallville, and moved from that place to Marshall. Later he made investments in real estate, which proved profitable, and he leaves a considerable estate.

ADVANCE OF LOCAL CANNERIES

PROFIT TO FARMERS IN USING SURPLUS OF TOMATOES AND OTHER VEGETABLES.

Special to The Messenger.

Fort Worth, Texas, May 7.—Reports from the vegetable growing districts of Texas to the Texas Commercial Secretaries' Association, will demonstrate to anyone the advantage which the location of a canning plant has been to the small farmers located around the city. Especially has it caused the tomato growing industry to boom, and considerable of the surplus ground is being planted in this vegetable. Many farmers and trucksters are raising tomatoes this year, not fearful of an overabundance in supplying the local market, because the canning factory is ready to purchase their surplus crop.

A fair crop of tomatoes, even if sold at strictly canning factory prices, will net the grower from $75 to $100 per acre. This is considerably better than cotton or corn, and the labor is not much greater. Extensive growers of tomatoes do most of the work by machinery, which very much lessens the labor and cost of production. Aside from tomatoes the small farmers are also raising corn and beans for the canning factory market.

There is no better state in the union or as good, for great canning, drying, conserving and preserving industries for fruits, vegetables, fish and meats, and for the milling and preparing of grain and health foods as Texas. Fast growing railroad, river and modern road mileage and new steamship lines, together with the approaching completion of the Panama Canal and the rapid growth of the southwest, are inducing large numbers of manufacturers to visit this state for a location.

PEPOON'S TRIAL FOR WIFE MURDER

HE CANNOT MARRY UNTIL SUNDAY ACCORDING TO LAW AND PRESENT TESTIMONY.

Special to The Messenger.
Colville, Wash., May 4.—On Sunday next and not before, according to law, George L. Pepon, now confined in the Stevens county jail, may marry Maude Keller, to whom he has already been married in British Columbia, and thereby prevent the woman from testifying against him when he is placed on trial the following day to answer the charge of having murdered his first wife. This is one of the interesting features of a case, which has attracted attention throughout Oregon, Washington and Idaho, and the trial of which is awaited with intense interest.

George L. Pepon and his wife were residents of Newport, this county. The death of Mrs. Pepon occurred on August 29, last, and at the time was ascribed to natural causes. Shortly afterwards, however, Mrs. N. D. Wood, of Portland, the mother of the dead woman, visited the scene and brought to light facts which led to the arrest and indictment of the husband on the charge of having murdered his wife by putting strychnine in her food. Sensational developments in the case followed in rapid succession until the evidence became so strong that the prosecuting attorney is of the opinion that the accused husband cannot escape conviction, even though he marries the woman with whom he is now living and thereby prevents her being called as a witness for the State.

On the day following the funeral of Mrs. Edith Pepon, Maude Keller, whose conduct with Pepon had been the cause of much comment, applied for a divorce from her husband who had left her several years before. When her case came up for hearing, Pepon was the only witness in her behalf. The decree was granted.

Then, without waiting for the period of six months to elapse, as the law of the State of Washington requires before a divorced woman can marry, Pepon and the Keller woman went to Roseland, B. C., and there a wedding ceremony was performed. Upon their return to the town of Newport they lived as husband and wife, although their marriage was not recognized by the laws of this State. The six months required by law will elapse on the day before that fixed for the trial of Pepon to begin. If the woman succeeds on Sunday next in having the marriage ceremony performed in jail she will thereby escape being called as a witness in the murder case, as the law prescribes that a wife cannot testify against her husband. The prosecuting attorney, however, proposes to have a strong enough case against the husband without the testimony of the wife.

NORTHERN BAPTISTS IN CONVENTION

GREAT RELIGIOUS CONGRESS BEING HELD IN THE CITY OF CHICAGO.

Special to The Messenger.

Chicago, May 4.—The intellect and the power of the Baptist Church in the North are concentrated in Chicago today. On every train distinguished clergymen and influential laymen from many states have been pouring into the city, until even the hotel corridors for once in their history might be mistaken for the vestibules of churches, so numerous thereabout are men of clerical men.

The occasion of this great gathering of the leaders of the Baptist denomination is the Northern Baptist convention, which is to assemble tomorrow for a week's session. The convention will hold its meetings in the Bartlett gymnasium at the University of Chicago and the presiding officer will be Dr. Harry Pratt Judson, president of the university. Between 3,000 and 4,000 delegates and as many more visitors are expected to attend.

No fixed program has been arranged for the convention, but all the church work, which includes the three great organizations of the Baptist Church, the American Baptist Foreign Missionary Society, the American Baptist Home Missionary Society and the American Baptist Publication Society, will be reviewed. These three large societies organized for worldwide mission work, and for publication interests, handle large sums of money annually and control operations of wide proportions.

For many years these several societies held their own annual sessions, making their own reports to themselves. Four years ago it was decided to organize one great convention of the Northern Baptists, to include the thousands of churches all over the country. The initial meeting was held in Washington and Governor Hughes of New York was honored with the presidency. Since then annual meetings of the convention have been held in Oklahoma City and Portland, Ore.

JACK NESBITT WAS FOUND NOT GUILTY.

Jack Nesbitt, on trial in the county court, Special Judge W. C. Lane presiding, for conducting a disorderly house, was acquitted Thursday. The case of Howard Long, charged with assault, was on trial Friday. Affairs are exceptionally quiet in the Corporation Court Friday.

TRIAL OF THREE FOR BATHTUB MURDER

THEY ARE ACCUSED OF KILLING MRS SNEAD AT ORANGE, NEW JERSEY.

Special to The Messenger.

Newark, N. J., May 7.—Interest in the mysterious death of Mrs. Okey Wardlaw Martin Snead at East Orange, N. J., in November last has been revived by the near approach of the date set for the opening of the trial of Miss Virginia O. Wardlaw, Mrs. Caroline B. Martin and Mrs. M. W. Snead, who are charged with the murder of the victim of the famous bath-tub tragedy. The case has been called for trial on Wednesday of next week and there is every indication that the case will be strongly fought, and will go down in the annals of criminal history as one of the most puzzling and peculiar cases ever known in this country.

Mrs. Okey Snead was found dead in the bath-tub of the house No. 89 W. Fourteenth Street, East Orange, on November 29, 1903, and so peculiar were the circumstances surrounding her death that the authorities began an investigation to ascertain the true facts in the case. In the afternoon of November 29 some woman called up the police of East Orange, asking for the address of the coroner. When the woman was informed that there were no coroners in New Jersey, she informed the police that a woman had committed suicide in No. 89 West Fourteenth Street. Dr. H. M. Simmons, one of the deputy county physicians was sent to the house and he found the body of the young woman in the bath-tub. The tub was full of water and the entire body of the young woman was submerged. At first the physicians did not suspect that there was anything wrong, especially as he found pinned to the clothes of the woman, a note stating that she had committed suicide. Closer investigation convinced him, however, that the woman had been dead more than twenty-four hours. As the bath-room was the only one in the house it seemed strange that the body had not been found sooner. The explanation offered by the three women in the house did not satisfy the physician, and upon his report a careful investigation was begun by the police authorities.

It was ascertained that the victim of the tragedy and her aunt, Miss Virginia Wardlaw, had moved into the house on W. Fourteenth Street ten days before the finding of the body. They had no furniture excepting a cot and a soap box which served as a table. The two women had no money and had subsisted on milk, biscuits and a few oranges. The investigation was continued and an amazing mass of material was brought to light. It appeared that the three women indicted for the murder of Okey Snead were near relatives of the victim. The aunt of the dead woman, Miss Virginia Wardlaw, comes from a well-connected Southern family, and at one time was president of Soule College, at Marietta, Tenn., and later a member of the faculty of Roanoke College, Salem, Va. The exact circumstances which led to the decline of the family fortunes are not known, but it seems that Miss Virginia Wardlaw, accompanied by Mrs. Caroline B. Martin, the mother of Okey, and Mrs. Mary W. Snead, mother of Okey Snead's husband, Fletcher W. Snead, came to New York some years ago probably in the hope of recovering their fortune. At first they lived at the Waldorf-Astoria, later at the Manhattan Hotel, but as their funds began to run low, they rented a modest house in Flatbush. After two months they moved to an even less pretentious house in Brooklyn and after a few weeks to the house in East Orange. What became of Okey's husband has not yet been definitely ascertained. He has not been seen for a long time and his next of kin pretend to know nothing of his whereabouts.

It has been ascertained that the women have been in a desperate financial condition for several years and have borrowed from many wealthy persons, giving their notes as security. As a strong moment of suspicion is considered the fact that the life of the victim of the bathtub tragedy was insured in ten companies for an aggregate of $32,000. The insurance companies at first suspected that the body of the young woman in the bathtub was not that of Okey Snead, but the body was positively identified by several persons; among them by the doctor who had treated Okey Snead when her baby, which died about a year ago, was born. Another strange feature is the fact that six or seven wills, purporting to have been signed by Okey Snead and making her aunt and some other relatives the beneficiaries.

Notwithstanding their poverty the three accused women have been able to obtain most able counsel. Miss Virginia Wardlaw will be defended by Mr. Franklin W. Fort, the son of Governor Fort; Mrs. Martin by Mr. Chandler W. Riker, a former prosecutor of Essex county and Mrs. Snead by Messrs. Samuel and Abney Malach. Many influential men are interested in the case and have offered financial assistance to the three women accused of murder.

The Excelsior Club afforded as usual a delightful time to those present at the dance given on Friday evening in the armory.

The Young Reception given on Friday afternoon from four to seven, to meet Mrs. Chas. Raguet, Mrs. Hugh Lothrop and Miss Maile of Austin, will always form a brilliant gem in the crown of social events.

The decorative scheme began at the entrance, where trailing vines, decked with roses sprang from the rich soil and gracefully hung to the lattice work upon the pretty veranda.

Madame Carey Abney and Mr. Martin were first to welcome the many guests upon their arrival into the reception hall, where little Miss Meri Driskell and Master Reuben Knight received the tiny cards.

The hall, parlor and back parlor were thrown into one and the ceiling curtains and walls were hidden beneath a mass of evergreens and the garden's fairest inhabitants, roses and carnations. A lovely addition to this scene of beauty were the many ladies in elegant gowns, that formed the reception line. First, the hostess, Mrs. T. P. Young and daughter, Miss Christine, with the honored guests, then following were Mrs. Milton Lothrop,

The round table was covered with a handsome lace center-piece and resting upon this was a huge bowl overflowing with pink roses that held the honored place with delicate pink tulips flowing from their gracefully clustered silver candlesticks held pink tapers that mingled their rays with the electric light overhead.

The occasion was in honor of the birthdays of the guests, and was very much enjoyed. The dining was served in courses.

GRAVEYARD CLEANING

NEAR ELYSIAN FIELDS.

Seven hundred people met near Elysian Fields Saturday for the annual "graveyard cleaning." In the old cemetery there are many who died in the pioneer days of Texas, as well as in later times. Once a year relatives and friends from Eastern Texas and North Louisiana gather at the spot and spend the morning in cleaning the graves, placing flowers on them and otherwise decorating them. This takes until about noon, the men doing most of the work, while the women are preparing the dinner. It is, in short, a great reunion of many families. The dinner served is a sumptuous affair and heartily enjoyed. In the afternoon the people spend the hours quietly and in games of contest.

Uncle Zeke's Speculation

A Story of War and Reconstruction Days in Texas

BY WILLIAM A. BOWEN

How Uncle Zeke Used His Freedom.

"Drop that gun!" exclaimed a youthful voice from behind.
He faced around to find a double-barrel, shot gun leveled at him by Charlie, who said: "You asked for the gun, and the old man told you it would kick. If you dare to harm him, I'll shoot you like a dog. I know enough to know that a man is justified in killing another to prevent his killing an innocent man."

The sergeant muttered something about having them before a provost marshal, and rode off besides the wagon.

And this man was now some kind of an officer assisting in reconstructing Texas. And he had not forgotten Uncle Zeke and that kicking gun.

He gave a great deal of trouble to Uncle Zeke and to Capt. Kendall, having them before the provost marshal on all sorts of charges. Only the letters Capt. Kendall had from General Grant kept them from bankrupting him. Many other citizens were less fortunate, and lay in prison until they paid the extortionate fines assessed.

Burton was finally sent away, an old friend of Capt. Kendall's agreeing to meet him in New Orleans and put him on the steamer to take him to Norfolk, and direct him how to proceed from there to North Carolina.

Uncle Zeke had induced his daughter to return home, and the farm was yielding good crops, and the family were prospering. All this time the secret of Uncle Zeke's money was kept.

Finally Charlie took his father into his confidence, and unfolded his plan to him after corresponding with Mr. Darwin, who was in Galveston. That gentleman said that he would soon go down to Brownsville to buy horses and was ready for Charlie to join him.

That was the plan Charlie had in his head. His quick wit had seen that after the war horses would be scarce in the South and would bring good prices for several years, and were plentiful and cheap in Mexico.

Uncle Zeke was almost beside himself with joy at the prospect. He had built a real "plank" church in the neighborhood for the colored people from the proceeds of his cotton and had contributed most of the money to build a double-log schoolhouse and put in the first "store-bought" seats in any negro school in Texas. These things had occupied his mind and kept him from worrying over the bad treatment he received in return from his people. His ambition was to have Burton come back and teach as soon as possible, for he did not like the idea of having a white woman teaching darkies, as it did not comport with what the old man thought the harmonies of life. And, however good the intention of these imported white teachers for negro schools, their judgment was at fault and their methods were irritating. They invariably stirred up strife or widened the breach between the negroes and their best friends, the Southern families, and the doors of the Southern homes were shut against them. And, at heart, Southern negroes held—and still hold—in contempt any person who cannot associate with Southern "quality" folks.

In the early spring of 1867, Charlie and Uncle Zeke were met in Galveston by Mr. Darwin and a number of hands he had hired to go with him to Brownsville. They were to go by Morgan steamer, and drive the stock back overland, selling as they came.

Uncle Zeke had never been on a ship before, and when the great engines started and the steamer swung out from the wharf the old negro begged to be allowed to go ashore. He could not understand how a man could be placed in any situation where he could not stop traveling when he so desired. But when they got outside, in the Gulf, and the fresh southeast breeze made the vessel roll and pitch the old man became very sick, and cried piteously to be sent back.

"O, Mawwee Charlew, lemme git off Yonder's sho," an' I kin swim dat fuh, I'd rather sot down an' see dat creek a-bu'nin' den be on his shis wiv dem paddles jeg, a cheenin' an' a-splashin' in de boat a-bobbin' an' a-prancin' lek hit is, an' a-tu'nin' me wrongside out 'ards."

But the next day, when they boarded a lighter to go ashore at Brownsville, Uncle Zeke was as happy as a lark.

They crossed over to Matamoros, found the man to whom Uncle Zeke's money had been loaned and received from him the principle and interest to the amount of $671.80.

Uncle Zeke danced with great joy. He had never handled so much money at one time before, not to money at one time before, not to say call it his own. He called Charlie immediately to help figure out how many horses he could buy.

An American family named Davis tried to prevent the party from going into Mexico to buy horses, saying: "You will never be able to come out with them. You will either be murdered for your money or your horses will be taken from you, or the officers under pretext of levying state duties will confiscate more than your profits. It is very hazardous."

But Mr. Darwin came to go over there and buy horses and he asked Charlie if he would venture with him and that intrepid youth declared he would stick to him, sink or swim. So they crossed over with thirteen men and started.

The party were armed with the then wonderful gun called the Henry rifle. It had a tin magazine that held seven loaded cartridges which were pushed into the gun and under the hammer by a spring. The Mexicans had never seen such a weapon before, and so did speechless amazement to see a man shoot any number of times, as they thought, without taking his gun down or reloading. And no doubt our party owed a great deal to the fame of these guns preceding them.

By the time they reached the southern portion of the State of Nuevo Leon, they had almost as many horses as they needed, some of them very fine, and large. On the border of Tamaulipas they were halted by a squad of soldiers, whose commander told them they must pay a custom duty before being permitted to drive these horses out of the state.

"Mr. Darwin!" exclaimed Charlie indignantly, "I believe this is downright robbery, and I'd rather fight than stand it."

"I know it is an imposition, Charlie; but we must stand it. It is one of the prices paid for trading in Mexico. The State officials in this country make laws, as far as levying tribute on strangers is concerned to suit themselves. They enforce them with the national military, as the government finds it easier to let them alone than to compel obedience to national laws. It helps to keep down revolutions. And the state officials will not trust the soldiers to collect, but simply compel people to go to the capital and pay up. So there is nothing for me to do but go up to Monterey and settle. I wish I'd known of it before buying so many horses, because we paying this levy to pay duty at the Rio Grande, let alone buying any more horses."

Uncle Zeke wanted to dispose of some of his and pay this duty for the company, but they would not permit his generous sacrifice by Uncle Zeke.

The place selected to hold the horses was in a plain skirting of dense woods, with a huge corral made for holding stock against any kind of stampede and from robbers. Immense oaks were sunk into the ground until they were as solid as if grown there, extending twelve and fifteen feet above. The opening through which the horses were driven was fixed so that it could be closed with great logs so that a man could just crawl through, making it impossible to force it wider from the outside. Charlie, Uncle Zeke and one man were left in charge.

"I was unconscious for three days, and after that I would have fainting spells, dizziness, nervousness, sick headache, heart palpitation and many strange feelings. I suffered greatly with ailments due to the change of life and had 3 doctors, but they did no good, so I concluded to try Cardui."

"Since taking Cardui, I am so much better and can do all my housework."

'Time's Flight Turned Backward' SAGE AND SULPHUR Made Her Look Twenty Years Younger

READ MRS. HERRICK'S SWORN STATEMENT

STATE OF NEW YORK }
COUNTY OF MONROE } ss
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

Nancy A. Herrick, being duly sworn, deposes and says: When I was a girl, I had a head of heavy, long, dark brown hair which was the envy of my schoolmates, and which attracted the attention and remarks of strangers. As I grew older, my hair commenced to come out, just a little at first, but gradually more and more, and then began to turn gray. I was induced by the many good reports I had heard of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy to try a bottle. My hair was quite thin and gray when I began using Sage and Sulphur, and you can imagine my satisfaction when I found that it was fast coming back to its natural condition, being thicker, darker and more glossy than it had been for a long time. I continued to use Sage and Sulphur, and my hair is now as heavy, dark and smooth as when I was a girl of sixteen. It is now four years since I commenced using Sage and Sulphur, and my hair is still in splendid condition.

Sworn to before me and subscribed to this statement at my office, in the County of Monroe, State of New York, this 1st day of May, 1910.

PEACHES SECURE SECOND GAME

SPENCER PITCHES GOOD BALL FOR MARSHALL — VISITORS GET BUT ONE HIT.

AGEE, SULPHUR SPRINGS, GETS A HOME RUN.

Neville Picks a Corker Off the Fence. Game Was Interesting and Exciting.

"And another one. Just look at us! Haven't got a ball a ball team, eh? Well, what do you call it? Yesterday Marshall defeated Sulphur Springs in second game of series, by score of 5 to 1. Coming back from their off-day both teams put up an excellent game. Only once did our opponents fail to keep on the ground and that was in the sixth, when we scored four runs. From this inning on McKenney weakened, but our boys could not move around the bags. Spencer, who was on the mound for the East Texas boys, pitched magnificent ball and the visitors secured only one hit and that was a homer in the second by Agee. He walked not a single man and no man reached first with this exception. The game was the best that has been played here this season, and our team is showing up well. If you don't see the games, don't say you are for greater Marshall.

In the first one, two, three for the visitors and our boys came to the bat. Lacofsky was safe on an error by McKinney. Davis sacrificed him to second. Pratt flew out to center. Nichols, the ready, scored Lacofsky on his single. Neville ended by tapping one to McKinney. In the second the visitors secured their only score. Agee the first man up, put it over the left-field fence and Hobbs went out to Hardy. Button fanned, Edwards fouled out to Nichols. In the visitor's half of the third after two were down Lacofsky saved a hit over second by fielding Bettison's swift grounder. In the fourth Nick got one over the eye when Edwards fouled and the mask broke and cut his eye. There was no man got to first until the lucky seventh, but everything was interesting for the score was 1 to 1. In the seventh Pratt doubled, Nicholson, who is always Johnny-on-the-spot, went to second on a bunt, which McKinney threw wild and the "Cap" scored. Neville beat out a bunt on the first base line. Nichols scored on Spencer's single. Simms layed one down to the third base line and went to second on the overthrow to first, Neville crossing the plate while this was in progress. Hardy hit to short and Spencer was out trying to fake home. Simms was out in a chase. Carden, as the day before put a "Texas League" over short and Hardy scored. Lacofsky went out and the scoring was over. In the seventh Davis was safe, and on an error stole second. Took third on centerfielder's error by Pratt. Fly. Bealy hit to short and Davis was thrown out at home. When Neville tried to bunt Pratt was caught off third taking too big a lead to work in the squeeze play. Neville went out to Short.

One hit, one man reached first, one score. No man walked. Oh, you Spencer. Agee parked it in the second for only hit the visitors got.

MANAGER SHIVERS SECURES THE FILM DESCRIBING THE GREAT AFRICAN TRIP.

Perhaps one of the most remarkable pictures ever exhibited, was presented to the public Friday night at the Grand Theater. Manager Shivers secured these pictures at quite an expense, and the public responded by packing the house for the first show at 7:30. Two regular reels of pictures were shown before the Roosevelt picture, and a detective story and "Her First Appearance," a picture reproduced from the stage.

Fifteen explanatory slides were shown, with a short sketch of each by Mr. John Taylor. These showed Col. Roosevelt listening to hunting stories, standing in front of his tent, on horseback, beside some of the big game he killed, and on the line of march through Africa. The motion picture opened with a very black monkey looking energetically through a pile of magazines and newspapers just after hearing that "Col. Roosevelt is coming." Native scenes, native amusements and native dwellings followed by the government buildings at Mombasa, showing Roosevelt planting a tree in front of the consulate. Also Roosevelt's railway trip through the country, showing the characteristics of African lands.

Detailed views of the birds secured by the Roosevelt party for the Smithsonian Institute were shown. The king fisher, Jackson's dancing bird, vultures and storks were reproduced from life. Then followed in succession Roosevelt's camp at Bondouli, a Zulu war dance given in honor of Col. Roosevelt, the ex-president presenting a valuable gun to a native chief, various animal specimens secured by the party, African lizards, spiders, and cat species, camels, rhinoceros and young land turtle and man-eating lion, harte beasts, gnus and zebra in herds, crocodile and young deer.

All these animals were photographed in their natural surroundings, a very hard feat to accomplish with an ordinary camera, while these were taken with a moving film.

The last scene was Col. Roosevelt's return, and the more than satisfied audience made room for the waiting crowd outside. The first show began at eight o'clock and lasted until five minutes to ten.

Special music was obtained for this picture.

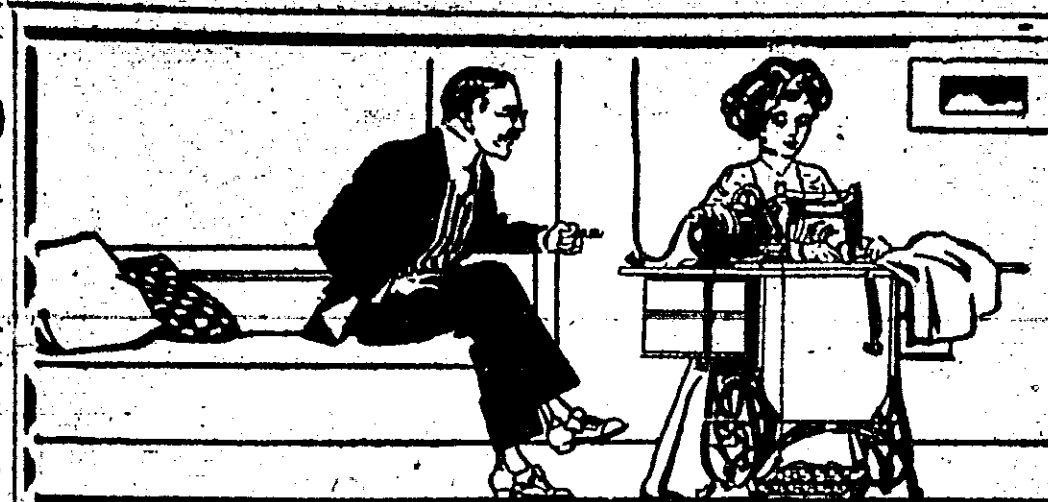

Mr. Shivers is to be congratulated on presenting such a fine picture, and complimented for its success.
